

Beech

The Beech tree has large, oval-shaped leaves. It has a dark grey bark.

It produces nuts which are edible, but hidden by a small, spikey, triangular shell. The shell falls to the ground in autumn and small animals eat the nuts.

The wood of the Beech tree is often used for flooring and other furniture.

